first published in 1996 the embedded self was lauded as a brilliant and long overdue rapprochement between psychoanalysis and family therapy conceived by a practitioner trained and experienced in both modalities of treatment mary joan gerson s integrated presentation of psychodynamic and family systems theory invited therapists of either orientation to learn the tools and techniques of the other to mutual benefit firmly grounded in detailed case presentations her focus on family therapy examined its history organizing concepts and developmental approaches and addressed practical questions of diagnosis clinical interaction and referrals a dozen years later the psychoanalytic community is more open to integrating perspectives and the growth of analysts working with couples and families necessitates an update of the material presented in the embedded self similarly the family therapy community has deepened its interest in individual dynamics within systemic patterning from a new and revised perspective on the possibilities of integration gerson covers the latest research in neuroscience and the transmission of affect within intimate relationships with a new chapter on attachment theory and emotionally focused therapy sections on narrative therapy and psychoanalytically oriented family therapy are expanded as well the embedded self was a sterling introduction to family systems theory and therapy and enhanced the work of analysts and family and couples therapists alike the second edition proves no different in its context but wider in its scope further enhancing the work of the family therapist interested in individual dynamics and preparing the psychodynamically oriented therapist who seeks to extend her craft from the dyad to the triad and beyond if i could talk to you about anything it could be so much about life do you see life as a spectrum of colours which enhances it everyday or adds value to it do you see it as a blank page which is just filled with events the palette called life just cannot be empty but is full of vibrant colours on a page with elaborate description of all that happens the best colours are found on the palette of life the artist is you and you need to decide which colour you would use where it only takes a blank space to start and when we do it is the colours and strokes that matter most some might see it as a blank canvas waiting to be brought to life just by a stroke by an artist we all draw differently and we all express differently a picture drawn by one person will differ even if the other draws the same we see things differently don't we but every stroke of the brush adds something to the canvas and so does everything you say or do what if i call life a rainbow a rainbow that is rare yet fills the day or moment with happiness a rainbow which has only seven colours but together gives the plain blue sky a different look altogether i am sure all of you have seen the arch of the rainbow what if i say it is a smile from above the one just there who looks down at us puts this smile on our face which if you see from his side is correct in shape a smile that tries to fit in as many as it can the one above just watches us smiling at the rainbow rainbow the colours that dance between the raindrops and the sunlight colours that are just that little moment that you get between the good times and bad colours that turn a dull moment to life the colours that suddenly appear turning a gloomy day to a cheerful one yet this sight is rare and short lived and is caught by only a few who notice it they either enjoy the sight of a rainbow alone or share it with others so is life either to be lived alone or with people around you there might be moments of happiness that bring you together or moments that you need when you feel low in both of these situations the people present with you are just like the rainbow you might not meet them always but whenever they are present they add the smile to your face or give you strength in times when you need it most the colours are reflections of your inner self they depict the various moods the feelings the emotions that are within you the same colour might speak a different language for each one of us the way we behave the way we do things in life or simply the way we dress shows the dominant colour that we carry with us that particular day colours have a language of their own which is interpreted differently by individuals but the rainbow is there just waiting for the rays of the sun to outshine the drops of rain that seem to suddenly come out of nowhere these drops of rain might seem colourless but can beautifully bring out the vibgyor which everyone watches in awe let me help you see this beautiful life with the various colours of a rainbow let me bring in the rainbow for you to smile as you read what i share with you
